We've built a weird little racing game, and we just want to have fun. So here you go. You get a go-kart, four paint jobs, one marshal, the track equipment, and the rules. And best of all: you get a nuclear sub. It won't hurt you, it's just the best weapon we could come up with to finish the race. It's not official content and it's not real. It's just a fun little thing we built for the developers. It's April Fools. Enjoy!Please note that this mod will not be getting any official support. We only have the time to work on official Arma 3 content, so this content will be treated as modding of its own. Therefore, if you use this mod, we will not provide any official support or additional information regarding it. If you have any questions regarding this mod, please contact our Customer Support. Also, we can't guarantee that this mod won't crash Arma 3. Nocturnal leg cramps are a common and disabling condition that can cause individuals to lie awake, alarmed or distressed. They may also limit participation in and enjoyment of activities such as sport and recreation and in professional performance. Nocturnal leg cramps are estimated to occur in up to 70% of adults and 80% of older adults. Treatment options include modifying sleep position, use of massage, rubber bandages, magnesium supplements and occasionally muscle relaxants. Nocturnal leg cramps are a complex condition and success in treating nocturnal leg cramps requires careful consideration of the many confounding factors, not the least of which are undiagnosed sleep disorders. In this overview, we identify the most appropriate approach to treatment, discuss confounding factors and consider the implications for sleep medicine.White Paper: Derivation of multiple RAP models from a single query in Graph DBMSs

This is a revamp of Loot Hero, made by someone who gave up on Classic, so I don't really know how it plays. I'm going to review the game and try it to see how enjoyable it is.I would suggest getting the SkyBlueBattleroid version, it's a $9.99 add-on for this game, and, despite its paywalls, it has the best ROMs of this game so far. Loot Hero DX for Classic Fighter Fan made game for the classic fighter Loot Hero Revolutionary game, downloadable for classic fighter Old Man's Loot Downloadable game, sometimes plays like the original Playable Dance Dance Revolution? DDR has a boxer now? I could be wrong about this, but I don't see the gameplay footage and only the screenshots for this. I know it has been on the PSN and XBL before, but it's been long enough now that I expect that the quality of that game would be average at best. If this works out I'd be surprised! So, now this is not a new game, but a remake, because "Loot Hero" is not playable. I never saw the screenshot for this game, so I can't comment on it. However, I also wouldn't be surprised if this is actually a new game. I'm currently playing a third party Fighter and you can tell a lot of work went into making the gameplay itself. I never touched Classic Fighters or even Fighter EX. I only played the 2.1 port of Battleoads. I never cared for the classic Fighters, so this would not come anywhere close to enticing me to spend my money on it. Perhaps if it had some new content I would be a little more interested. Likely not. The Classic Fighters require, at minimum, a new resolution of 240x320, which means all of the assets would have to be entirely redrawn at that resolution. These

and the MOXIE: Can you make it to Mars in this VLOLable spacecraft? This post will attempt to prepare you if you wish to support the Mars Odyssey and the MOXIE mission to Mars, a joint venture involving the next generation of NASA's Mars Exploration Flight Mission Orion spacecraft and a unique lander design from the commercial space company Lockheed Martin. The New Horizons mission to Pluto and New Frontiers to Europa and Spirit on Mars may have introduced modernity to space exploration, but spaceflight primarily remains an esoteric activity in the future for the main bulk of the human race. Spacecraft like Pioneer 10 and Voyager and the International Space Station, while immensely important in demonstrating and proving the technologies and techniques of spaceflight, are just as likely to be lost in the skies, as they were just launched a decade ago. We don't come back from places like the Moon or Mars. The time-space limitations, the expense, that we have to dedicate to a spacefaring civilization are too high. Mars Odyssey and the MOXIE Significantly, the Mars Meteorology, Ionosphere and Dynamics Explorer, or MOXIE, mission has not flown any of the probes it has built - sadly doomed to a smash in the desert sands. The MOXIE lander is a commercially offered, re-purposed lander similar to the now-defunct Mars Polar Lander, designed for the Mars Exploration rover that will be built by Lockheed Martin for NASA to fly atop the Orion spacecraft. The $200 million satellite mission - funded by Lockheed Martin, and designed to serve as a scientific mission, will also be able to communicate with the remotely operated lander, and return data of its own for the human mission to Mars. Significantly, the $200 million satellite mission - funded by Lockheed Martin, and designed to serve as a scientific mission, will also be able to communicate with the remotely operated lander, and return data of its own for the human mission to Mars. The two spacecraft will send back to Earth the same information, as close to instantaneously as possible. Accordingly, Orbiting Carbon Observatory 2 (OCO-2) - a solar energy satellite also funded by Lockheed Martin, designed for NASA's Earth Science program - is sending back to the Federal government our first scientific data about the global environment from space. Lockheed Martin has been working to advance robotic space exploration with the all-volunte
